Total Qualification Time (TQT) is the number of notional hours which represents an estimate of the total amount of time that could reasonably be expected for a learner to achieve and demonstrate the achievement of the level of attainment necessary for the award of a qualification.

TQT is comprised of the following two elements:
1) The number of hours which an awarding organisation has assigned to a qualification for Guided Learning, and
2) an estimate of the number of hours a Learner will reasonably be likely to spend in preparation, study or any other form of participation in education or training, including assessment, which takes place as directed by - but, unlike Guided Learning, not under the Immediate Guidance or Supervision of - a lecturer, supervisor, tutor or other, appropriate provider of education or training.

Assessment strategy

Details of the assessment strategy and evidence requirements for this qualification can be found in Appendix 1 at the end of this document.

Recognition of prior learning (RPL)

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) is a process of using an individual's previous achievements to demonstrate competence. This is not a new process but expands on previously described terms like "the accreditation of prior learning (APL), the recognition of experiential learning or "the validation of informal learning" by incorporating all types of prior learning and training.

The RPL process is relevant where an individual has previously learnt something but has never received formal recognition for this learning through a qualification or other form of certification. An individual is able to 'claim' that he or she knows or can do something already and does not need to attend a course to learn it again. If he or she can prove this claim (through assessment of relevant evidence), then credit can be awarded for that achievement in the same way as any other credits. RPL refers to an opportunity for candidates to present competence or knowledge evidence which comes from a period prior to their registration for a particular qualification. The evidence presented e.g. certificates, witness testimonies etc, will need to provide sufficient detail to allow the assessor to apply an RPL assessment process.

City & Guilds Level 3 Diploma in Hospitality Supervision and Leadership

Appendix 1 Evidence requirements and assessment guidance

Introduction
This document contains evidence requirements and assessment guidance for the Hospitality Supervision and Leadership Level 3 Qualification. They have been developed jointly, and agreed, with the relevant awarding bodies. They provide information on how each unit should be assessed and give examples of what types of evidence will be acceptable. These are only examples and should not be seen as a prescriptive list.

This document must be used in parallel with the approved Assessment Strategy for Hospitality Supervision and Leadership.

The nature of the qualification and source of evidence
Hospitality Supervision and Leadership is an occupational qualification whose purpose is to assess a candidate's competence. In each unit there are learning outcomes that describe what the candidate must be able to do in a real work environment. It is a requirement; therefore, that evidence to meet the assessment criteria for these learning outcomes comes from real work activity in a hospitality workplace. In some circumstances, evidence of the candidate's performance can come from a Realistic Working Environment (RWE). However, RWEs must meet the guidance provided in Appendix B of the Assessment Strategy.

Contingencies
The only exception to workplace or RWE evidence is where particular learning outcomes or assessment criteria rarely or never occur during the period of assessment. Examples could include accidents and emergencies, equipment failures, overspends etc. These are identified as 'contingencies' in the evidence requirements. Alternative assessment methods, such as simulation or questioning, may be used for contingencies of this kind.

Holistic assessment
Occupational qualifications lend themselves to holistic assessment. Provided a candidate is competent in their role and ready to be assessed, evidence for a number of units is likely to come from the candidate's day-to-day work with little interference or support from the assessor. Evidence will be naturally occurring and should only need to be cross-referenced to the learning outcomes and assessment criteria.

Assessment methods in general
The assessment methods for this qualification are very similar to those used for NQF NVQs. The units are split into what the candidate should be able to do and requires Performance Evidence; and what the candidate understands and requires Evidence of Knowledge and Understanding.

Each of these has a number of possible assessment methods. Every assessment method has advantages and disadvantages, and assessors should choose the method that is most effective and efficient in bringing out and judging valid evidence. For most of the learning outcomes requiring performance evidence, a combination of assessment methods may be appropriate.

These different methods are discussed below.

Performance evidence

Performance evidence applies to those learning outcomes (and the associated assessment criteria) that describe what the candidate is able to do. These learning outcomes all begin with 'be able to' and are followed by an active verb; they will have tangible outcomes, such as work products. Examples of these types of learning outcomes are:

- 'Be able to contribute to new recipes and menus'
- 'Be able to maintain the health, hygiene, safety and security of the working environment'
- 'Be able to supervise food production operations'

The assessor should use a variety of assessment methods to prove consistent competence.

Performance evidence assessment methods

Assessment method: observation

This covers observation of the candidate's performance at work by a qualified assessor. Observation is probably the most robust method of assessing performance but requires a great deal of time and resource. For this reason observation can be complemented by the other assessment methods below.

Assessment method: products of work

Products of work are appropriate to many of the learning outcomes and associated assessment criteria. Products of work include, for example: menu and recipe plans, cellar records, staff rotas and accident reports. Products of work are excellent sources of evidence and often eliminate the need for an assessor to observe the candidate producing them.

In order to reduce the burden on the candidate, assessors are encouraged to log the relevant product of work and its location rather than insist the candidate stores copies in their portfolio.

Assessors must ensure that products of work are authentic, ie the assessor must satisfy themselves that the evidence is genuinely the products of the candidate's work and not someone else's. It is possible for candidates to present products of work from the past, although this should be sufficiently recent for the assessor to be able to infer current competence.

Assessment method: witness testimony

This is another form of observation and takes account of the fact that valuable performance evidence will occur when the regular assessor is not present. The use of witness testimony is encouraged because, again, it reduces the need for observation by the regular assessor. The Assessment Strategy provides for two types of witness testimony.

- Witness testimony, eg from a customer, supplier or colleague that provides evidence towards a candidate's assessment or
- Expert witness testimony that provides powerful evidence of competence, that may in itself be sufficient for an assessor to consider that competence has been proved.

Expert witnesses may be other approved assessors who are recognised to assess the relevant occupational area and level, or line managers/other managers, that may not be approved assessors, but whom the awarding body agrees have sufficient occupational qualifications or experience to make a judgement on the competence of a candidate. Expert witnesses must be able to demonstrate practical experience and knowledge in the unit being assessed, and expert witness testimony must be used in line with awarding body requirements.

Witness testimony of either kind must be authentic, ie the assessor must satisfy themselves that the testimony is a true account of the candidate's performance.

It is possible for candidates to present witness testimony from the past, although this should be sufficiently recent for the assessor to be able to infer current competence.

Assessment method: candidate statement/report

Candidate statements also take account of the fact that valuable performance evidence will occur when the assessor is not present. The candidate statement/report gives the candidate the opportunity to write a brief description of something they have done which meets the learning outcomes and assessment criteria in a unit. For a candidate statement/report to be valuable, it must be possible to cross reference it to content of the unit and to clearly see how the description provides evidence against the relevant learning outcomes and assessment criteria. It is possible for a candidate to produce a statement/report on something they have done in the past, although this should be sufficiently recent for the assessor to be able to infer current competence.

Assessment method: professional discussion

Professional discussion can be used as an assessment method for performance and knowledge and understanding. Professional discussion is a single, or series of structured, planned and in-depth discussions between the assessor and candidate. Professional discussions can be used to obtain evidence from the candidate about what they have done and how they did it; it can also be used to supplement observations, witness testimony, examination of work products and written questions/answers. However, assessors should not rely entirely on candidates' reports of their own competence. It should always be supplemented by other types of evidence such as witness testimony and work products.

Evidence of knowledge and understanding assessment methods

Evidence of knowledge and understanding applies to those learning outcomes (and the associated assessment criteria) that describe what the candidate understands. These learning outcomes all begin with 'understand'. Examples of these types of learning outcomes are:

- 'Understand how to contribute to new recipes and menus'
- 'Understand how to maintain the health, hygiene, safety and security of the working environment'
- 'Understand how to supervise food production operations'

Assessment method: questioning

Oral and written questions are both valid methods of assessing the knowledge and understanding learning outcomes and associated assessment criteria and are likely to be the assessor's method of choice.

Assessment method: other recorded evidence of knowledge and understanding

This includes work-based projects, case studies and reflective accounts. For some candidates these approaches can be powerful ways of bringing out evidence of a candidate's knowledge and understanding across several related learning outcomes and even units. However, their use will depend on the candidate's circumstances and ability to structure and write the appropriate documents.

Assessment method: professional discussion

Professional discussion can also be used to assess knowledge and understanding. Professional discussion is a single, or series of structured, planned and in-depth discussions between the assessor and candidate. A professional discussion can bring out a wide range of knowledge and understanding across many related learning outcomes or units, particularly covering why certain things are done or the principles that underpin competent performance. Professional discussion can also help to verify the authenticity of other pieces of evidence.

Assessment method: inferring knowledge and understanding from performance

It is possible for an assessor to infer that the candidate knows or understands certain things from observing their performance or examining other pieces of evidence such as work products or witness testimony. This particularly applies to assessment criteria that cover how to do certain tasks, eg:

- 'explain how to gather and evaluate information that will help to plan and update the wine list'

The assessor should already have seen evidence of the candidate's ability to do this in the 'be able to' learning outcome in the same unit. They may, therefore, reasonably infer that the candidate has this knowledge and understanding.

Inferring knowledge and understanding from performance is a helpful way of avoiding over assessment. However, it should be used with caution, particularly when it comes to the possession of key facts, eg:

- 'identify the legal requirements relevant to weights and measures, trades descriptions and licensing legislation' or the reasons why certain things are important:

- 'explain why confidentiality is important'

In both of these cases, oral/written questions, reflective accounts and professional discussions would be more valid ways of testing knowledge and understanding. The specific knowledge must be brought out.

Volume of evidence/length of assessment

The evidence requirements do not stipulate how frequently a candidate must be assessed for each unit or how much evidence is acceptable. Assessors and verifiers should use their professional skills and experience to determine how much evidence over what period of time is sufficient to make a reliable judgment of consistent competent performance.

This is likely to vary according to the individual candidate and their working situation.
